MASSACHUSETTS STATE POLICE DEPLOY THE NEXUS HAWK

ROCHESTER, NY: The Nexus Hawk™ is now being used by the Massachusetts State Police to increase public safety while reducing costs.

Built to industrial standards, the Nexus Hawk is a portable or mobile cellular router that brings secure Internet connectivity to areas where traditional networks don't exist. Among other uses, public safety organizations have successfully used the optionally GPS equipped Nexus Hawk to assure that closest units are dispatched first. While en route, officers are provided with wireless broadband service, giving them a tactical advantage prior to arrival.

Massachusetts State Police chose the Nexus Hawk to meet its demanding requirements. Jeff Ziembicki, a spokesperson for A.I.M. said, "The Nexus Hawk provides the type and level of security and remote connection assurance that our customer's application required." He added, "The Hawk has advanced routing capabilities that were instrumental to our success."
